

Property Cost Paid In Full In Two Years

DELAWARE WATER GAP — The Borough Council meeting, held Monday night in the fire hall, was attended by all the councilmen: Francis Drake, Richard Hauser, Willard Kitchen, Phil Farber, Christie Shull, John Staples. Also present were Burgess Ben Wiberg, Water Supervisor Layton Decker, Secretary Mrs. Edythe Glebe, and Treasurer Mrs. Delbert Davis.

The meeting discussed the borough's acquisition, through condemnation proceedings, of the former Schimp property about one and one-half miles up along Wolf Hollow Road. This was formerly known as the Schilling place. It was purchased to protect the water shed from lumbering. It feeds Caldene Creek and into the borough reservoir. About two years have been taken for acquiring it and the purchase was fully paid for out of funds of the Water Department.

Several citizens visited the meeting with complaints of depredations a week before Halloween all on the Hill section around the Heights. While a few young folks had spoiled the remarkable record of the Gap, the councilmen felt that on the whole they could highly commend the majority of the Water Gap boys and girls.

Coolbaugh Twp. Supervisors Repeal Zoning Ordinance After Trial Of Two Years

TOBYHANNA — During the regular meeting of the Coolbaugh Township Board of Supervisors, held Monday night in the fire hall, a majority vote repealed the zoning ordinance which had been in effect about two years.

The supervisors followed the wishes of a reported 63 per cent of the property assessment in Coolbaugh Township. The request for repeal was made in the form of a petition.

After about two years' trial the citizens made it known through the Tobyhanna Civic League, Joseph Rice president, that the ordinance was too restrictive in its terms, too arbitrary in its powers, making it impractical, unworkable, unnecessary, and undesirable for a small community where no previous plans for large tract development had been made.

In fact, some owners of large tracts showed the zoning ordinance had actually hindered the growth and development of Tobyhanna, it was reported.

One of the most objectionable articles of the ordinance regulated the sale of lots for single dwellings to a minimum of 20,000 square feet with not less than 100 feet frontage.

Attorney James Scanlon represented the taxpayers and Toby-

Some Aftermath

Theories flew thick and fast as election eve died and revived again yesterday as the re-hash of the Democratic sweep in Monroe County and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania held as the chief topic of conversation.

Nearly everybody, including the "ins" and the "outs" had pet theories, and all with some sound foundation.

The Republicans have ruled Pennsylvania for a fullsome 16 years. During that time the Pocono Mountains have fared well in many instances, as have many other sections of the state.

Why, then did the GOP lose the Commonwealth?

As we said, there are many theories.

To us it appeared that from the outset of the campaign the Democratic drive was aggressive, positive and filled with a hungry vitality that never diminished.

The Republican campaign, on the other hand, started out on a defensive note and never seemed to get done "answering" the Democratic drive, instead of the offense tactics usually set forth in a political campaign.

Early in the campaign, this newspaper took a position in favor of endorsement of the "sitting judge" principle. That principle involves the idea that qualified jurists, who have demonstrated their ability on the bench, should be endorsed by both political parties, regardless of the political faith of the judge.

Good Combination

Slightly better than a three to one approval was given to the union of Stroudsburg, Stroud Township and Delaware Water Gap school districts at Tuesday's election—the first approval given for any combination of school districts in Monroe County.

The size of the approving vote, of course, has a great deal of significance, but even more than that is the fact that this is the first move to bring two or more districts together with the avowed purpose of providing finer school facilities and improved education opportunities for the youth of this region.

George Sokolsky Says...

Communist Party In China Has Never Been Independent Of Soviet Clique

The Manchester "Guardian" in an editorial by Owen Lattimore has this to say concerning an article written by him in 1947:

"... Its treatment of Greece may be clumsy and mistaken, but on China, the real point at issue, it is remarkably perceptive. It makes the point, not widely appreciated in 1947, that the Communists in China were not simply a small clique but had wide support in certain areas, and that they had proved their independence of Russia. But the point was not popular in America, then or now..."

It was not true in 1947 that the Communist Party of China was independent of Russia. It is not true in 1954. It was not true in 1952 when Chiang Kai-shek seized power in Canton assisted by cadets of the Russian-managed Whampoa Academy. (He was then the darling of the Russians). General Bluecher-Galems (this correct name was Bluecher) was in Canton at the time as the military adviser of the Kuomintang which Communists temporarily joined as individuals by an agreement between Sun Yat-sen and the Russians. Michael Borodin was the head Russian adviser. The Communists between March 12, 1925, when Sun Yat-sen died, and Christmas Week of 1926 attempted not only to infiltrate the Kuomintang but to conquer China in the interest of Soviet Russia.

The international aid—in particular the unselfish aid of the Soviet Union to China—is an important factor for building up Socialism in this country.

Naturally, the view that the Communist Party of China is or has ever been independent of the authority of the Kremlin is not popular in the United States because it is not true. It has never been true. Furthermore, the Communist Party of China is the first anti-American party ever to have come into existence in that country. "Pravda," on October 12, published the Russo-China Communist line toward the United States:

Dear Mrs. Cyril G. Fox,
I have read in our local newspaper a statement made by you to Council of Pa. roadside, in that you stated and believe lives are endangered on our roads by highway pollution in the form of signs and billboards. I would like to write these few lines to say I can't agree with you in all respects, and why I can't. You say "motorists lives." That takes in 100 per cent of the motorists. I would say it might endanger one per cent or maybe 1% of one per cent of motorists lives. We must remember that our lives are always in danger, in our homes and out of our homes. I have never obtained any statistics of how many accidents on the roads are caused by drivers watching signs. I would say the percentage is so small it wouldn't be worth while recording. Accidents are caused by poor drivers, drunken drivers, speeders and drivers with poor judgment of speed, road conditions and lack of control of cars they are driving etc. A driver on a long trip going 50 mph sees very few of the signs. He may see some of the largest ones which are placed far ahead at a position where he can read them without taking his eyes off the road. Other drivers may want to read signs as he may be looking to purchase produce for sale at cheaper prices than he would have to pay at home. He may be looking for overnight cabins, hotels, eating places etc, but at those times he drives slow enough to avoid accidents.

Signs are a sign of progress, of communities with energetic, enterprising, progressing business people. A big majority of the tourists want those signs and billboards and need them. They help

For a time there were indications that Gov. John S. Fine was going along with this idea and that perhaps the Republican leadership representing the ticket would do likewise.

But Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, the somewhat ancient GOP State Chairman then ready to step down for a new chairman, raised the partisan howl which apparently changed the minds of the whole GOP team.

Two GOP candidates were trotted out to join Judge Robert E. Woodside, GOP incumbent on the Superior Court. They were to specifically oppose Judge Chester H. Rhodes and Judge F. Clair Ross, the two Democrats.

Democratic party leaders, however, adopted the sitting judge principle and endorsed Woodside, a Republican, along with Rhodes and Ross.

We don't say this won the election for the Democrats, but we do say it had a very definite effect on the outcome because it made Judge Rhodes and Judge Ross fighting candidates.

And fight they did with the Pennsylvania Bar, Philadelphia Bar and many county bar associations coming to their aid.

Had they been endorsed by the GOP they would have been effectively sidelined along with a lot of lawyers who stirred up a lot of votes—Democratic and Republican—in behalf of two Democrats and a Republican running on a very sound and appealing principle.

'THE TIME HAS COME,' THE WALRUS SAID

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

Concert Enjoyment Always Personal, Not The Critic's

A New York reader is worried. She goes to shows or concerts and occasionally to art exhibitions. She enjoys them often and gets a lot of benefit from them.

Then, the next day, she reads her newspaper and the critics take whatever she saw and enjoyed all to pieces and say it is terrible.

What is the matter with her, she asks. Is it a sign that she is uncultured, that her taste is bad, that she has no artistic background?

What can she do, she asks me, to be more selective, to see the good and the bad in art, to be as critical as the critics?

I am probably the last person in the world to whom to go for advice on culture.

I might tell my friend that my favorite artists in pictures are Martin and Lewis; on television, Jackie Gleason and Abbott and Costello. My favorite singer is Patti Page. I might tell her that I can't stand Wagner, that Bach and Beethoven leave me cool and that, when it comes to art, the pictures in the current magazines appeal to me much more than those in the museums.

By this confession I suppose I have queer myself forever with my highbrow readers but, since there are about a thousand lowbrows to every highbrow, I really don't care an awful lot.

My advice to the lady is, if you enjoy it, don't you give a continental what the critics say.

Men—and women—who HAVE to go to the theatre or to concerts or to art exhibits almost every day and night in the week are very apt to become blasé and hard-boiled.

They are just a little bit like the clerks in candy stores who are permitted to eat all the sweets they want. The first few days it's wonderful. They stuff themselves to their hearts' content. The second week they can take it or leave it. After that they won't eat candy if you give them a 50-cent piece with every bonbon or chocolate.

My wife and I went to Carnegie Hall the other evening, to the excellent concert of the Concertgebouw Orchestra, over here from Holland.

We really enjoyed it. My wife was crazy about it and I, to show you how much I DID enjoy it, did not walk out after Weber's Overture to the "Freischütz," which was the first number.

The next morning we looked at our paper.

Here is what the critic had to say, among a couple of columns of other things:

"We must respect the wishes of this earnest and retiring artist and should refrain from endowing his symphonies with the opulent sheen that has become characteristic of our phenomenal orchestras."

"Otherwise the sultures which are undeniably—and inevitably—present in a style that is essentially archaic, become too prominent and detract from the aristocratic taste that rules these works."

If any of you understand what this critic is talking about, I shall be glad to send you the libretto of any opera you chose.

Or, on second thought, you may be that one highbrow out of a thousand, so I'll just send you a post card.

The critic ends his write-up with these words: "The work was very well played, but the colors showed through glass beads rather than crystal prisms."

And that is the trouble with most critiques.

Try and Stop Me

Matt Weinstock tells about a lovely cat lover who was dining with her husband in her apartment one night when she fancied she heard a cat meowing a floor or two away. "I'll bet that pussy is over there," she said.

Her surprise the cat answered her! She regaled her meow, this time puffing extra feeling into her performance and there then ensued the darndest cat conversation ever heard in that neighborhood. It continued for a full half hour, while the husband marveled.

The next day her triumph was deflated when a neighbor dropped down to borrow some sugar. "The funniest thing happened last night," said the neighbor. "I meowed at a cat and he meowed back—and we must have kept it up for forty minutes!"

Overheard at a bus stop on Madison Avenue:

make our America the greatest country in the world. What a dismal place New York City or Philadelphia or any city would be without signs and just because there are millions of signs in our cities does not necessarily go to say they cause accidents or motorists lives are endangered thereby. Many of these signs actually help to protect motorists. Some signs are illuminated at night and on dark nights, foggy nights or when snow falls or drifts these signs are noticeable, when the road itself, the shoulders and ditches can not be seen. What motorist would want to drive for hours and hours, mile after mile and not see billboards and signs? I am afraid driving would become so monotonous the driver would slip off into a doze and probably wreck his car.

It seems all arguments are in favor of billboards and against their removal, except they should be placed off the highway far enough so they do not interfere with the traveling public or the maintenance crews.

Signs are a sign of progress, of communities with energetic, enterprising, progressing business people. A big majority of the tourists want those signs and billboards and need them. They help

Pre-Granted Tax Prize Set For A's Purchasers

Washington, November 4 — A juicy tax prize will go to whoever does finally win that dizzy on-a-gain-off again hassle over the sale of the Philadelphia Athletics.

That has been accommodated by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS has done this in a special ruling which will mean a big tax-reduction bonanza to the eventual purchaser of the American League baseball team.

Under this unannounced special ruling, the buyer of the club will be allowed to deduct the cost of the players' contracts in two different ways: Once—as a regular operating expense of the team; second—as a depreciation spread over four years.

As the players' contracts are a major cost item, the Revenue Service's intriguing beneficence will mean many thousands of dollars in the pocket of the new Athletics owners.

The circumstances surrounding the issuing of this special tax ruling are also interesting.

The matter was laid before Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews by private attorneys. They requested an official opinion on the tax treatment that would be accorded "the cost of one year uniform professional baseball players' contracts acquired through the purchase of an entire or substantially entire baseball club."

Immediate action was asked, but not directly by Commissioner Andrews.

He discreetly passed the buck on this touchy issue to the general counsel of the Treasury Department. They requested an official opinion on the tax treatment that would be accorded "the cost of one year uniform professional baseball players' contracts acquired through the purchase of an entire or substantially entire baseball club."

Health Program Needed

—by H. G. Heller

Preparations being made by Monroe County Tuberculosis Society for its 1954 sale of Christmas Seals, as they do each year about this time, always raises the question of how much the general public has followed the fight against this dread disease.

Taking the problem from the standpoint of all of Pennsylvania, here are some interesting facts that will answer many of your questions:

The known prevalence of TB has declined little in the last 20 years. More people are under treatment for TB than at any previous time.

During 1953, 7,731 cases of TB were reported to the Pennsylvania Department of Health, including those from Monroe County.

This represents the highest number reported during the past 20 years.

Tuberculosis was the leading cause of death in the State in 1946. Since that time the death rate from this disease has been reduced 90 per cent but TB is still a serious problem.

During 1953, the 1,623 TB deaths recorded was the lowest number in the history of the State. However, this decline has not been accompanied by a corresponding decrease in the number of persons sick with TB.

Progress in the fight against TB since the first Christmas Seal was sold in 1907 has meant a saving of more than 340,000 lives in Pennsylvania.

It is estimated that one-fourth of the population is infected with the germs that cause TB. Each could break down with TB and spread the germs.

It is estimated that there are 30,000 active cases of TB in Pennsylvania and that 8,000 new cases develop each year.

Tuberculosis kills more Pennsylvanians than all other infectious diseases combined.

Pocono Scout District Tops In Growth

POCONO DISTRICT is leading the Delaware Valley Area Boy Scout Council in growth of scouting, it was revealed in a report last night.

The district now is "far ahead of any previous membership record" was the report by Dr. Francis B. McGarry, district organization and extension chairman, at a meeting of Pocono district committee.

McGarry said 456 boys are in scouting in this district, and there were a total of 610 in scouting during the year.

Growth still is continuing. Dr. McGarry said, and four new units are being organized now: a cub pack at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, a scout troop in Kunkletown, and a cub pack and scout troop in Cherry Valley Methodist Charge. In addition, 13 units are scheduled to register before the end of the year.

Possibility of holding a "Cubbing Fair and Scouting Merit Badge Show" during Boy Scout Week in February was discussed. There will be more discussion at a round-table meeting of unit leaders Nov. 15.

District Chairman William R. Schiebel presided at the session.

State House Won By Dems

denying the magnitude of Leader's victory. Seven months ago he was an almost unknown state senator when party leaders picked him for the gubernatorial nominee. Republican factions had achieved what they called "harmony" by slating Wood and looked like certain winners.

Republicans and Democrats alike were aware that only one Democrat — George H. Earle in 1934 — had won the governorship since 1890.

Leader began his campaign at once, despite a primary election contest, and kept right on going after winning the nomination. He hammered away at the GOP administration of Gov. John S. Fine, at the GOP-enacted sales tax which he pledged to end, and at what he called "20 years of Republican misrule."

Near the finish line, when Republican strategists obviously became concerned about their prospects, they drafted President Dwight D. Eisenhower for an appearance at his Gettysburg farm with the GOP state and congressional tickets.

And finally, on election day when Democratic chieftains said they needed a big vote turnout to win, pouring rain and snow pelted the entire state as though to discourage voters.

But approximately 3,687,000 ballots were cast — 71 per cent of the total registration. And when the count began Leader jumped ahead on the first Philadelphia return and never dropped behind.

His final lead in the state's largest city was 112,402 votes. Pittsburgh and surrounding Allegheny County added 86,906 to that total.

Rule-of-thumb breckoning by Democrats is that the party must have majorities in the two biggest cities to offset Republican leads in the remainder of the state. Even that axiom was knocked down in the Leader sweep, in the 65 counties outside Philadelphia and Pittsburgh he had a lead of 75,076.

Leader carried 33 counties, 11 of them by more than 13,000 votes, and three others by more than 5,500. Wood's plurality exceeded 19,000 in only five counties.

The Democrat who will become Pennsylvania's chief executive next January accepted victory

State Job Patronage Passes To Democrats Under Newly Elected Leader Administration

On top of this, an estimated 71 per cent of the total voters registered in Pennsylvania had cast their ballots in the election. The figure is believed to be a near-record for the State in a non-presidential year.

Where did all the interest come from? Second-guessers, who had thought there would be no interest before, would have to look to individual districts to find the answer to that one.

In Monroe County, the answer could be found, as stated previously, in the determination of party leaders to drum up an interest in the campaign.

The Democratic ticket had two political teeth in it. Before long the Democratic campaign was biting away at Republican-enacted State sales tax, the charge that GOP officials had been guilty of "macing" and another slogan: "Let's clean up the mess in Harrisburg" which also was borrowed from the GOP thunder in 1952.

Long-time political observers timed the race as Lloyd Wood, GOP nominee, went into the field and predicted the election would be a close one.

Observers also said there wasn't much interest in the off-year election. To much voter "apathy", they said. They were wrong on both counts.

With most of the unofficial counting done, it became apparent that without any tremendous burst of excitement, calling his election "a profound honor and responsibility" and pledging:

"As governor, I shall endeavor by the best application of human wisdom to give Pennsylvania government of enduring virtue, justice and judgment keyed to the needs of our people."

Then he went back to his York County farm to spend a few hours with his wife and their two small sons and infant daughter, and to scratch some sleep. Returning to Harrisburg later in the day, he candidly agreed that he did not know anyone who had expected so big a Democratic win and commented:

"I certainly attribute it to the result of the main issue of the campaign—the simple bread and butter economics, unemployment and lower income and so forth.

"Also I think it expressed the resentment against the leadership in Washington and Harrisburg—the leadership which refused to recognize these problems and combat them."

Wood, his defeated opponent, sent routine congratulations, and headed for a rest at his Montgomery County home.

Gov. Fine, who stood on the Republican sidelines throughout the campaign, at first refused comment on the result, saying "I would advise you to call Republican headquarters and talk to those who directed the fight."

Later, he wired Leader his congratulations and best wishes, and offered the "fullest cooperation and assistance as you prepare to assume the governorship."

Fine also is returning in January, probably to practice law in his Luzerne County home area where he still is the top Republican power. Luzerne County gave Democrat Leader a majority of 9,213 Tuesday, but Fine's choice for State Sen. Rep. Harold Flack, won by nearly 6,000 votes.

His final lead in the state's largest city was 112,402 votes. Pittsburgh and surrounding Allegheny County added 86,906 to that total.

Rule-of-thumb breckoning by Democrats is that the party must have majorities in the two biggest cities to offset Republican leads in the remainder of the state. Even that axiom was knocked down in the Leader sweep, in the 65 counties outside Philadelphia and Pittsburgh he had a lead of 75,076.

Leader carried 33 counties, 11 of them by more than 13,000 votes, and three others by more than 5,500. Wood's plurality exceeded 19,000 in only five counties.

The Democrat who will become Pennsylvania's chief executive next January accepted victory

Fine Offers Leader Full Cooperation

PHILADELPHIA. Nov. 3 (I.P.—Gov. John S. Fine today offered his "fullest cooperation and assistance" to Gov.-elect George M. Leader.

Monroe did not have a substantial GOP majority in the last gubernatorial election, Nov. 7, 1950.

At that time, now-retiring Gov. John S. Fine squeaked past Richardson Dilworth, his Democratic opponent, by a margin of only 20 votes. Fine had 5,884 to Dilworth's 5,864.

Monroe County went heavily Republican in the 1952 Presidential election, as did most of the nation.

In terms of local political power, Tuesday's election has placed the Monroe County Democratic party back in the limelight insofar as county and district political leaders will be in open season.

The Republican State ticket refused to endorse the "sitting judges," in which both parties include incumbent judges on their tickets in a bipartisan move for an equitable and non-political judiciary.

On the basis of the local party's performance during the election, much stress will be placed on the recommendations and advice of Sheriff Altemose, Assemblyman-elect Van Yetter and other local Democratic officials.

Although there may be great rejoicing among Democrats as the administrative harness falls on their shoulders for the next four years, there may be a few headaches involved in that traditional practice of political patronage.

Trying to satisfy everyone who thinks he knows the man most qualified for an appointive job won't be an easy thing. Although Democrats may have forgotten the headache since the days of George Earle, the Harrisburg horse race is pleasantly one thing—but patronage is often a horse of a different hue.

Leader said that he actually had not received Fine's telegram yet but he believed it was among hundreds at state Democratic headquarters that had not been opened yet.

Jr. Women Launch Year's New Projects

Special projects of the Junior Woman's Club were launched at the meeting held Tuesday night at the Stroud Community House. For their welfare project teams of club members are planning special activities. Among those announced were making and selling aprons, selling gift wrappings, sponsoring a square dance and conducting a rummage sale.

The club members will combine to make an afghan to be sent to Korea. Mrs. Richard MacDonough, welfare chairman, reminded the members to bring children's mittens or other clothing for Korea to the December meeting. At that time there will also be a display of leather work done by Irene Van Why, which members may purchase.

Mrs. Kenneth Werkheiser, co-chairman of the Christmas dance, announced that it will be held this year at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on December 28. Tickets will be distributed at the next meeting.

Mrs. Warren Mikels, presiding at the meeting, thanked the six members who served as judges at the Halloween parade.

During the business session, the club voted in favor of changing the by-laws to raise the club dues. Reports on the Pennsylvania Federation of Woman's Clubs Convention in Philadelphia were given by Mrs. Edward German and Mrs. Warren Mikels. It was announced that the Stroudsburg Junior Club had won the yearbook award in the handicraft division for the third consecutive year.

Mrs. William Morgan read Mrs. Richard Frederberg's report on the Northeast District meeting at Catawissa and the county meeting at Greenview Guest Farm.

Six new members were announced at the meeting: Mrs. James Outlaw, Mrs. Warren Nissen, Mrs. Gerald Snyder, Miss Emily Eberts, Mrs. George Strake and Mrs. J. Thomas Campbell.

Mrs. Wendell Wicks, guest speaker, was presented by Mrs. German. Mrs. Wicks presented an amusing account of the family trip taken through the Western part of the country, traveling by station wagon and camping out along the way. She told how the usual deterrents to trips "No money, no time and children" had been solved one by one. With the family in on the planning, everything is possible, she said, and gave many tips for pleasant travel. She illustrated her talk with colored slides of the scenic spots they had visited.

Mrs. Karen Roth, soprano, was presented by Mrs. William Graham. She delighted the audience with several solos. She was accompanied by Wally Hornbrook.

Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. Fred Rhodes and Mrs. Martin Ellsweig, co-chairmen; Mrs. William Osborne, Miss Joan Harlan, Miss Dorothy Butz, Mrs. Morris Wilkins and Miss Alma Hogren.

Acme Hose Aux.

Acme Hose Co. Auxiliary will meet tonight at 8 at the firehouse in East Stroudsburg.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

While you may have felt pio- neerish venturing out in such weather on Tuesday, on Wednesday you only felt uncomfortable. With no altruistic motive to buoy you up, and no sleep the night before, the rain seemed wetter; the cold, colder; and the necessity for going out at all, more unpleasant.

Unless, of course, you had such a pleasant excuse as a church supper or the Community Concert. It's amazing what a difference your destination makes in your opinion of the weather.

Youngsters bound for a hay ride will insist that it's scarcely raining at all—and anyway it's a warm rain—and besides good cold fresh air is good for you. When it's a trip to the mailbox at the end of the lane, then the same weather is freezing, practically, and besides their throat has been scratchy all day.

Though we don't need to go to the children for examples of the same thing. By and large, we do what we want to do. The woman who says that she has too much work to do at home to spend time at club meetings is usually saying, in effect, that she gets more satisfaction out of a well-run home than out of club contacts.

The man who wishes he had more time to read probably means that he'd rather do something else—otherwise, he would.

Of course there are outside things that really do interfere—small babies or elderly invalids, for instance—but for the most part we really do spend our lives doing what we want to do—no matter how we excuse ourselves for not living it another way.

Red Cross Denies Reports It Is Charging For Blood Being Furnished To Hospitals

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, both nationally and locally, yesterday emphatically denied printed reports that it is charging for blood furnished to hospitals.

On the local level, Detlef A. Hansen, chairman of the Monroe County chapter, said:

"The Red Cross has never charged for blood, nor will it ever charge for blood. The Red Cross has had the blood donor program since April, 1950, and in no case has there ever been a charge."

Mr. Hansen noted that "there is a charge for the administration of the blood." He was referring to a charge made by most hospitals for administration—usually a very nominal fee to cover cost of tubes and other equipment, most of which cannot be again used.

This matter arose locally once before and then it was emphasized the charge is not for blood, but for administration and cost of equipment used to administer it. However, in some instances, bills to hospital patients who received the free blood carries the administrative charge under the heading "blood," which gives rise to the erroneous belief the charge is for the free blood, given free by the Red Cross.

Dr. David N. W. Grant, medical director of the Red Cross, said in a statement released yesterday:

"The American Red Cross today was distressed to learn that erroneous statements have again raised charges of selling blood against the organization. Throughout the entire history of its blood program, no charge has ever been made by the Red Cross to hospitals or individuals for blood or blood products. The Red Cross wishes to emphasize that no charge has been made in this policy."

"Erroneous statements in newspapers and magazines and on the radio have created a widespread misunderstanding and already have resulted in a decrease in the collection of blood so vitally needed every hour of the day in hospitals."

"Every pint of blood donated to the Red Cross has cost the organization an average of $5.12 for its collection, processing and distribution to hospitals. During the development of the Red Cross blood program many refinements and changes in equipment, methods and procedures have taken place. The present plan of sharing with hospitals concerned a limited portion of this cost, involving supplies which can be used only once and blood transportation charges, is an adjustment to meet local conditions which was worked out with hospital authorities. Approximately 10 of the 45 Red Cross regional blood programs have made this adjustment."

"The costs of these supplies and delivery services to the hospitals vary from $1.75 to $2.50 per pint of blood, according to the locality. In most instances, hospitals have absorbed these extra costs without passing them on to the patients. Full cooperation has been received from hospitals taking part in this plan."

"The only purpose of the Red Cross in this program is to provide urgently needed blood to the American people. At present the blood program serves about 3,500 hospitals throughout the United States, providing the total blood supply for over 2,000 and supplementing that used by about 1,500."

"In addition to furnishing about 40% of the whole blood used in the country, the Red Cross blood program also provides gamma globulin, blood derivative needed to fight measles, hepatitis, and infantile paralysis. It also makes available to the public, without charge for the products, other valuable blood derivatives."

Vote Machines Approved By Dreher Twp.

NEWFOUNDLAND — Dreher Township voters gave approval Tuesday at a referendum on the question of installing voting machines to become the first Wayne County district to sanction the machines.

The vote was 190 for machines; 86 against.

Republican candidates received a 6 to 1 edge in the balloting. In neighboring Greene Township, Pike County, voters favored GOP standard bearers by a 2½ to 1 margin.

Taft's Son Wins In Ohio

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3 (UPI)—Robert Taft Jr. will sit in the Ohio House of Representatives next January as his famous father did three decades ago.

He was elected yesterday along with eight other Republicans from Hamilton County. Taft led the field.

It was the 37-year-old lawyer's first try for office. The late senator's first elective office also was to the Buckeye legislature, where he served from 1921-26.

Mrs. Brodhead Honored By Gap Residents

DELAWARE WATER GAP —

Tuesday afternoon brought a happy surprise to Mrs. Thomas Brodhead, ex-postmaster of the Gap postoffice, when Burgess Ben Wiberg, on behalf of the town, came to her home and presented her with two gifts. Every family in the village had had a share in these.

One is a bronze clock. Five by four inches, with flings doors closing over the face. It is inscribed, on a metal plaque on the back, as being presented by the "Home Folks" to Mrs. Brodhead for her fifty years service to the town.

The other gift is a fine leather handbag with leather lining. Mrs. Brodhead was almost too overcome to express her feelings; but asked Mr. Wiberg to tell each and every one how grateful she is for the tokens of their appreciation and how delighted she is with the choice of gifts they made.

Mrs. Brodhead and her sister, Mrs. Mary Donlin, plan to leave for Florida Monday.

Services Held For Mrs. Miller

SERVICES FOR Mrs. Clara R. Miller, 56, of 52 N. Kistler St., East Stroudsburg, were held yesterday at Lanterman funeral home, East Stroudsburg, with Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Burial was in Laurelwood Cemetery, Stroudsburg. Pallbearers were George Freeman Jr., Thomas Heller Jr., Peter Miller, Charles Lugg, Joseph Starner and Fred Focke.

Controversial Scientist Wins Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Nobel Prize for chemistry was awarded tonight to a controversial California scientist who discovered how the vital protein molecules of plants and animals hang together.

Two German-born scientists who developed valuable atomic tools and techniques shared the physics prize.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Science voted the chemistry prize of 181,646 krona (about $35,000) to Dr. Linus Pauling, 53, professor of chemistry at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

The physics prize of the same amount is split between Prof. Walter Bothe, 63, of the Max Planck Institute at Heidelberg, Germany, and Dr. Max Born, 72, a theoretical physicist who once sought refuge in Britain from Hitler and now lives in retirement at Bad Pyrmont in Hannover, Germany.

In recent years Pauling has been under fire several times for alleged Communist affiliations, which he has stoutly denied.

The number of American illiterates over 14 was reduced from 20 per cent of the population in 1870 to 2.5 per cent in 1952.

CPL. DANIEL F. CALLEY, 25, of Turtle Creek, Pa., and his bride, Lubov Dimova, face their future with a smile in Pusan, Korea, with Sonia, 5, Lubov's daughter by a previous marriage. Married in a military chapel, the couple had a year-long battle with Army and Embassy officials, who objected to the GI's association with the woman captive of the United Nations during the Korean War. The newlyweds now face immigration restrictions which may bar Sonia from the United States.

Adlai Boomed By Truman As '56 Candidate

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., Nov. 3 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson today thanked former President Truman for naming Stevenson his presidential candidate for 1956 but said "I have no present plans for future political activity."

Stevenson, Democratic nominee for President in 1952, issued a brief statement commenting on Truman's remarks on the NBC television show, "Today."

An interviewer asked Truman to name his choice for a candidate in 1956. The former President named Stevenson. In reply, Stevenson gave this statement to newsmen:

"I am grateful to former President Truman for his confidence and good will but I have no present plans for future political activity."

"I've done what I could for the Democratic party for the past two years and now I shall have to be less active and give more attention to my own affairs."

RIO DE JANEIRO is the Brazilian city best known in the United States, but Sao Paulo has as many people, is growing rapidly and may soon surpass the capital in population.

FDR's Eldest Son Wins In California

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3 (AP)—James Roosevelt was assured of a seat in Congress today as he continued to pile up a lead in California's heavily Democratic district.

With 721 of 914 precincts counted, the eldest son of the late President led Republican Theodore Owing, 72, 198 to 50,206.

However, Owings, city clerk of Culver City, has not conceded.

California's 26th district has better than a 2-1 Democratic registration.

But while California voters sent the son of the late President Roosevelt to Congress, they failed to do the same for the one-time personal physician of FDR.

Retired Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, running as a Democrat, lost to the Republican incumbent, Bob Wilson, in San Diego county's 30th Dist.

Class Notes Increase In Furnace Fund

BARTONSVILLE — Announcement that the church furnace fund is gradually increasing but as yet no contract has been awarded for installation was made when the Crusader Class of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School met at the parish house.

Mrs. Beatrice Swink presided. Other reports were presented by Mrs. Russell Bond and Emma Dunbar.

Tentative plans were made to sponsor a musical program, possibly during the early part of December.

Due to conflicting activities it was decided to hold the next class meeting Nov. 19 instead of on the regular night.

During the devotional period Emma Dunbar read the scripture lesson and Rev. John B. Bergstresser led a discussion on "The Festival of the Reformation."

Doughnuts and cider were served from a table decorated in orange and black. Hostesses were Mrs. Josephine Dunbar and John Field.

Those present were Rev. John Bergstresser, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cyphers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Mrs. Russell Bond, Mrs. Joseph Dunbar, Mrs. Beatrice Swink, Emma Dunbar and John Field.

Kiwanis Club To Observe Ladies Night

Analomink Wooldale

Mrs. Max Hess

Phone 1415-R-1

SINCE STROUDSBURG Kiwanis Club will observe ladies' night at the Penn-Strood Hotel Friday at 7 p.m., a roundtable session was held at the hotel yesterday noon for those unable to be present at the night session.

Dr. C. W. Dupee, president, urged a large attendance at Friday's social gathering. Rev. Luther E. Martin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Mountain, Delaware Water Gap, will be the guest speaker.

Miss Kathryn Mertz of Nazareth, student at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will be heard in vocal numbers, accompanied by another student at the college. There will be dancing from 9:30 to 12:30; music to be furnished by Joseph Engelhardt's Pecono Manor Inn orchestra.

The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Eric Schuchard, Parke W. Kunkle and E. H. Laesser.

Dr. L. J. Koehler, who with his family enjoyed a motor trip to the West Coast, was welcomed back to the club. Capt. Charles R. Baker attended a meeting of the Scranton club, Oct. 27.

Alan Strassman, vice president of the Stroudsburg High School Key Club, was welcomed by President Dupee; also Larry L. White, secretary of the Navy YMCA at Norfolk, Va.; and Charles Robinson, of Portsmouth, Va., both Kiwanians.

The roundtable discussion was based on indoctrination of children to train them for meeting future problems in life.

Reporters And 'Coach' Eisenhower Unaware Of Final Score During 'Dressing Room' Talk

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (UPI)—Normally when you go into the dressing room to see the coach after the game, you at least know which team won.

But reporters who trooped in to see President Eisenhower today didn't know what the final score was, and neither did he.

True, Tuesday's election results showed at the time that the House had gone Democratic, but not by much. And at the time of the news conference the only thing certain about the Senate was this: It wasn't going anywhere very convincingly.

A little early, in short, for a post-mortem.

But, first, a look at the coach himself.

Eisenhower began by saying he had been absolutely astonished and surprised by some of the results. He took the fun out of this, though, by refusing to say which results had so surprised and astonished him.

Attempts to get him to eat some of his stronger campaign words, didn't get far either, although he did soften them a mite. Now that he was faced with the actual prospect of a Democratic House, Eisenhower said he had put it too strong when he said it would be a cold war if a Democratic Congress were elected.

Election Highly Inconclusive As Barometer For 1956 With Both Parties Claiming Gains

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The Democratic "sweep" which appeared to be in the making, even through the first few hours of vote-counting, has turned out to be something less than that.

Despite the importance of committee chairmen changes in Congress, the turnover is much less than the average for off-year elections.

The Democrats, of course, will follow the already-expressed Truman statement that the voting represented a repudiation of the Eisenhower administration.

Insofar as Eisenhower was unable to stop what has become traditional for off-years, there may be some loss of prestige. As applied to the Eisenhower program, there is a great deal of ground for argument which the Republicans will make use of. But since the Republican candidates in nearly all cases tried to make it appear their defeat would be a slap at Eisenhower, he and they are going to have to lie in the bed they have made on that score.

Actually, there is more than one point where the returns give Eisenhower's program considerable advantage.

For instance, neither the Democrats nor the Republicans who tried to block Secretary of Agriculture Benson's flexible farm price support program will feel so brash as they did before.

A lot of surveys had shown that a good number of farmers were willing to pay something for reclamation of a part of their traditional independence. Whatever it was, the biggest farm states continued to go along with the Republicans. Dairying areas were an exception. They have complained at Benson.

The administration failed to get through its foreign trade program at the last session. Too many Republicans refused to go along. The Democrats will be glad to help give it new life when Eisenhower presents it again, as he has promised.

Any further efforts to "take government out of business," however, are likely to run into road blocks, despite the stock market's rise yesterday when traders were represented as pleased because the Republicans had done better than expected.

From many standpoints this election was highly inconclusive as a national barometer for 1956. The general issues which the national leaders sought to establish for the most part feel flat. It was evident that local issues and local personalities were the deciding factors in too many races.

Stratton criticized Lohman for remarks the governor said Lohman made in 1952 while chairman of the Illinois Pardon and Parole Board. Stratton made public a recording of a speech he said Lohman gave to parole agents in which he said a "disproportionate number of policemen's wives were former prostitutes." Stratton charged Lohman was "unfit for office."

Lohman said the recording had been "doctoring," and charged Stratton with "trying to extend his iron-clad downstate control into Cook County, trying to elect a hand-picked sheriff."

The two youths, identified as James Hill, 16, of Derry, and John J. Dickerson, 14, of Monessen, broke out of the detention home Monday. Dickerson is under indictment for murder in the slaying of Newell Phillips, 76.

The slain man was beaten to death with a hammer as he lay in bed at his Monessen home.

Hill was being detained on an auto larceny charge. A third boy, Joseph Salinger, 14, escaped with the two but was captured soon after.

Police said the three used a long piece of wire to spring a lock on their door and then fled down a fire escape.
